June educational program

Bill Bierly said that during the Civil War mint officials experimented with numerous variations on the national motto before settling on In God We Trust.

There are several theories on where the wording came from, but the generally accepted one - that Salmon P. Chase picked the motto of his alma mater: Brown - isn't true. Chase went to Dartmouth.

Bill thinks it may have originated with the Civil War battle cry of the Huntingdon Bible Co. of the 125th Regiment, Pa. Volunteers.

The company was decimated at Antietam (Sept. 12, 1862), an event that was much publicized at the time and most likely known to Chase.
